Director Emeritus of Gardens and Grounds for the Thomas Jefferson Foundation at Monticello

“A Rich Spot of Earth: Thomas Jefferson’s Revolutionary Garden at Monticello”

Saturday, April 6th at 3:30 pm

Belmont Mansion is thrilled to host Peter J. Hatch, the Director Emeritus of Gardens and Grounds for the Thomas Jefferson Foundation at Monticello, for a lecture, garden tour and reception on Saturday, April 6.

Mr. Hatch will be speaking on the restoration of the Monticello gardens. As Hatch shares, “the essential power of Monticello's landscape and gardens is that they illuminate the head and the heart of Thomas Jefferson. Few topics tell us more about him.” This revolutionary gardener was a foremost leader of change in American gardening.

Mr. Hatch will begin at 3:30 pm in the auditorium of the Leu Center for the Visual Arts on the campus of Belmont University. Afterward, guests will tour the Mansion's gardens before a reception and book signing in the Grand Salon of Belmont Mansion.
